If a short-term rental only offers longer term tenants, would it attract similar tenants. Also working with how to collect hospitality fees and taxes. Staff have researched area cities' ordinances on short term rentals.

Mayor Schweller gave some background as to why Bellbrook has the policy of no less than 26 days for short term rentals.

RECORD OF PROCEEDINGS

Bellbrook City Council Meeting

August 11, 2025

Mr. Schommer said there are advantages requiring registration of short-term rentals.

Mr. Hoke did a quick search of other cities' policies and said he would like to revisit requiring applications/registrations.

Mr. Ashley agreed and said it's a win to bring in revenue and still allow residents to use and enjoy their properties.

Mrs. Cyphers also agreed and likes the policy that Centerville has involving an "entertainment district" and limiting the area where Bellbrook allows short term rentals.

Mr. Havens said he has spoken with someone in the City who has multiple long-term rentals and would like to be able to have short-term tenants in between.

Mr. Greenwood does not think short-term rentals should be in residential areas. He said he doesn't think residents should be capitalized on and have their neighborhood diminished.

Rentals of this type should be in business districts or areas dense with other rental properties.

Mr. Harding asked how a lodging tax would be collected. Mr. Schommer said it would go through the rental company.

Mayor Schweller said he would like to see the minimum rental time be at least 7 or 14 days.

Mr. Schommer said a bed and breakfast is a different concept and could extract that definition from the short-term rental Ordinance.

B. Discussion about amendment to Ordinance 2025-O-12 regarding small livestock.

Mr. Schommer said each version of this Ordinance comes from discussions over the last couple months and input from residents. The latest version in Section D defines transition periods as the animals age out and new are introduced. Section M discusses keeping butchering out of public view. Also discusses lot size and Mr. Schommer suggested adding language that defines lot size, especially for parcels that include multiple lots.

Mayor Schweller talked about an article from Dayton Daily News regarding cities that do allow backyard chickens.

Mr. Ashley said he likes the most recent version of the Ordinance and would like to move forward.

Mrs. Cyphers asked about the definition of 618.01. She said she would like to have that definition and Ordinance at the same time.

Mr. Schommer said 618 is reliant on this Ordinance but the Ordinance is not reliant on 618.

Mr. Havens said he thinks 18 is too many.

Mr. Hoke asked how many chickens would be enough for a family to get eggs.

Elaine Buxa, 2229 Creekview, said 6 chickens in their first year could produce 4 eggs each per week. After a chicken reaches 2-3 years old the egg production declines. She said a family of 4 could benefit from 6 chickens in their prime. She said 12 would also be a reasonable number and doesn't feel the transition phase would be harmful.

Mayor Schweller said a maximum of 12 for one-acre properties would be reasonable. Under an acre, 6.

Mr. Ashley asked about multiple structures for multiple animal types. Mr. Schommer said there is an aggregate for total number of animals, regardless of type.

Rebecca Langdon, 2237 Creekview, said she doesn't think 12 is too many for less than one acre lots. She said her half acre could accommodate 12 with no issue during transition. If she had a surplus of eggs she would share with her neighbors at no cost.

Mrs. Cyphers said we should incorporate the small livestock transition language in section 618.
